DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it is too long. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-4, 6-8, 10-12 and 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Salyer et al. (US Patent Publication Number 2002/0099380).

Salyer et al. disclose an elongated surgical reamer spindle, e.g. 10, having first and second ends and a central housing enclosing a drive train and comprised of at least two housing members (see figure 3) a locking ring e.g. 46, an elastic device, e.g. 58, a locking sleeve, e.g. 18, having a handle, e.g. 24, and recesses, and a surgical reamer, e.g. 78 (see figures 1-19).

With regard to the statement of intended use and other functional statements, they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over Salyer et al., which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-16 and 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Salyer et al. (US Patent Publication Number 2002/0099380) in view of Lewis (US Patent Number 3,723,995).

Salyer et al. disclose the claimed invention/kit except for a femoral prosthesis, an acetabular prosthesis and an acetabular cup. Lewis discloses a femoral prosthesis, an acetabular prosthesis and an acetabular cup and teaches that a plurality of these devices may be included in a surgical procedure depending on the needs of the particular patient (see paragraph 0028). It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the device of Salyer et al. with a femoral prosthesis, an acetabular prosthesis and an acetabular cup, in view of Lewis, to accommodate the various needs of the particular patient.

Claims 5 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Salyer et al. (US Patent Publication Number 2002/0099380).

Salyer et al. disclose the claimed invention except for the train being selected from a group of drivers consisting of nickel titanium, ferrous metal flexible round wound cable, flat wire wound cable, gear-driven shaft and universal joint. It would have been an obvious matter of design choice to one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to construct the drive train of Salyer et al. being selected from a group of drivers consisting of nickel titanium, ferrous metal flexible round wound cable, flat wire wound cable, gear-driven shaft and universal joint, since applicant has not disclosed that such solve any stated problem or is anything more than one of numerous shapes or configurations a person ordinary skill in the art would find obvious for the purpose of providing a drive train for a reamer device. In re Dailey and Eilers, 149 USPQ 47 (1966).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO 892 for art cited of interest.
